KOKOMO NON-JEWS AID DRIVE FOR TEMPLE FUND; SITE IS PURCHASED

Special

KOKOMO—With $10,000 of the building money already raised, the officers of B'nai B'rith Israel Temple Assn. here, this week announced the purchase of a building site in West Superior Street, opposite Foster Park.

Ground for the new building will probably be broken in February and the structure when completed will cost between $15,000 and $18,000, Max Gerber and I. B. Andich, chairman and co-chairman of the Temple Association announced.

Although it is not planned to accept contributions from non-Jews, the Association was forced to yield when a group of men headed by Karl Johnson, Glen Hillis, City Judge William Naftzger and Frank Kilcline set themselves up as a committee and sent letters to non-Jewish leaders of Kokomo.

Stating that "no community enterprise in Kokomo has ever failed to receive the gracious whole-hearted support of the Jewish people, we feel that it is now fitting and proper that the community give its support to their worthy project," the letter was sent out this week to leaders of the community.

Grateful over the action of Mr. Hillis, who was the Republican candidate for Governor of Indiana in the election last year, Mr. I. B. Andich was already starting to campaign for Mr. Hillis for Governor in the 1944 election. Mr. Kilcline is general manager of the Luntz Iron and Steel Co., here and Mr. Johnson is the head of the Johnson Corp.

Open House Is Set For Men In Service

An Open House in honor of soldiers and sailors who will return to Indianapolis on furlough for the holidays, will be held at Kirshbaum Center Tuesday, Dec. 30.

The program, which is under the direction of the Service Committee of the Indianapolis Jewish Youth Central Council will feature a gala dance and general get-together. Mrs. George Frank and Mrs. David Sablosky are representatives of the Army and Navy Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board which is sponsoring the affair. Miss Bernice Kaplan is chairman of the planning committee.

All Kirshbaum Center members, soldiers, sailors, their parents and friends are invited to attend. Invitations will also be extended to Jewish boys stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison and the Naval Armory who are unable to be with their own families at that time. Refreshments will be served and there is no admission charge.

Pals Club To Reorganize

Reorganization of the Pals Club, formerly one of the most active men's clubs in the community was made announced this week with the calling of a meeting of former member for Tuesday night, Jan. 6, in the Columbia Club. The organizing committee includes Sidney Stein, Sam Blum, Jack Fogle, Dr. Leon Goldberg, Roger Popp and Nathan Resnick.

The Marines and the Flyers are tied for first place as Kirshbaum Center's Intramural Basketball League goes into its fourth round Sunday.

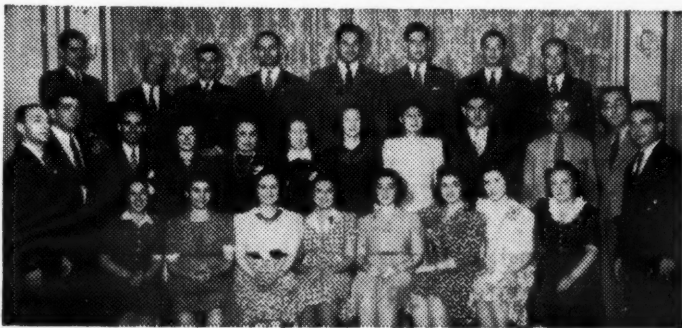

In games played last week, the Flyers defeated Army, 22-19. The schedule for Sunday is: 2:00 p. m., Flyers vs. Marines and 2:45 p. m., Army vs. Navy.

Early Deadline

Because Christmas and New Years fall on Thursday, the day on which The Post is printed, deadline for copy in our issue for next week and the following week has been moved up to Tuesday afternoon. The Post will be printed on Wednesday, and will be received by subscribers as usual on Friday.

Lodge Auxiliary Membership Tea

The B'nai B'rith Auxiliary will hold a membership tea on Jan. 17 at the home of Mrs. Allen Kahn, Mrs. Richard Efroymsen who is chairman of the membership and her co-chairman, Mrs. Milton Fineberg announced this week. The next regular meeting has been set for Jan. 19 and Mrs. Sam Kroot, program chairman, said.

CINCINNATI CHORAL SOCIETY TO SING AT BETH EL CHANUKAH DINNER SUNDAY—The Cincinnati Choral Society, consisting of 35 trained voices, has been engaged to provide the entertainment for the annual Beth El Chanukah dinner this Sunday evening. One of the outstanding Jewish choirs in the middle west, they will give a program of Yiddish, Hebrew, and Palestinian melodies. Cantor Myro Glass, assisted by the Beth-El Choir will light the Chanukah candles, and give the blessings. Mrs. Abe Jaffe will be the accompanist.

The dinner will be prepared by the Sisterhood committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Max Rutenberg, and Mrs. M. Maurer. All reservations must be in by Friday, and only those who make reservations in advance will be served, as a capacity crowd is expected. The dinner is scheduled to start promptly at 6:15 P. M.

Mr. Julian Freeman is head of the entertainment committee and Daniel Frisch will be toastmaster.

MONUMENT UNVEILED—The stirring monument to George Washington and the two men important in the financing of the American War for independence, Robert Morris and Haym Salomon, is shown above, after unveiling in Chicago at impressive ceremonies as part of the national observance of Bill of Rights Day, Dec. 15. Symbolizing that people of all races and creeds participated in the founding of the United States and recalling the importance in 1776 as it is today, of civilian co-operation in time of war, the monument now stands at Wacker drive, Wabash avenue and State street, one of Chicago's foremost downtown intersections.

Oratory, Debate Serious Side Of A.Z.A., K.I.O. Meet Here

Not all the activities at the A. Z. A. Kentucky-Indiana-Ohio convention in Indianapolis December 27-29 will be concerned with dances, banquets and dates.

On the more serious side of the program is the oratorical contest which is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday night, Dec. 28, at the Antler's Hotel. One orator from each of the A. Z. A. chapters in the three states will participate, and the subject will be "America, A Symphony of Peoples."

Interest also will be centered on the debating contest. Three sessions will be devoted to debating, the first set for Sunday morning at the Antler's Hotel, to be followed by the semi-finals at 3:30 that afternoon, and the finals at 3:15 p.m. Monday.

Both these events are expected to draw large audiences from the city's Jewish community, and are open to the public without charge.

The basketball tournament will start Sunday morning and finish Monday with both the Communal Building and Kirshbaum Center gymnasiums being used. A high brand of the hoop skill will be found in the teams competing for the championship of the three states. Last year, the Indianapolis A. Z. A. was runner-up to the Dayton, O., chapter.

The convention starts Saturday night, although registration will take place all that day, and ends Monday night.

Asaph To Broadcast Chanukah Program

The Asaph Organization will sponsor an hour's Chanukah broadcast over WIRE at 9:30 a.m. this Sunday when Rabbi Elias Charry will deliver a message on "God and Freedom," and Cantor Myro Glass and the Beth El Temple choir will chant the traditional Chanukah ceremony and other Chanukah songs. Miss Jean Joffe will accompany the choir, and Caroline Unger will recite Chanukah poems.

Weiss Named Worshipful Master

Jacob Weiss, former State Senator from Marion County, was elected Grand Worshipful Master of Monument Lodge of Masons last week. He will be installed at a New Year's eve dinner and party.

Use of Soap, Eating Out Countenanced In Kashrut Code

Special

NEW YORK — Use of soap in washing dishes in kosher homes, and the removal of guilt from eating "prepared foods which may contain some forbidden ingredient that is not distinctly in evidence . . . when one dines in a public place", are two suggested changes discussed in a summary report on a new guide for Jewish ritual usage which is in the preliminary discussion stage by The Reconstructionist, organ of a branch of the Conservative movement.

The changes in the observance of kashrut are part of an extensive discussion of a larger "guide . . . designed for those Jews who cannot find adequate guidance in any of the traditional Jewish codes and yet feel the need for regulating their conduct by some form or standard of Jewish usage".

The new movement, with which a large part of the Conservative rabbis in the nation are in sympathy, is considering modification of ritual usage in practically every place of Jewish life.

The changes have been published in the last four issues of The Reconstructionist, which is edited by a group of rabbis including Rabbi Mordecai M. Kaplan and Rabbi Milton Steinberg, and are labelled, "tentative and exploratory".

Part of the report follows: "The observance of kashrut in the home offers fewer difficulties than elsewhere and is particularly important because of the indispensable role of the home in preserving the continuity of Jewish life. A stricter standard of conformity to traditional usage can therefore be required in the home than abroad. There is usually no need at home for eating the flesh of forbidden animals, for serving milk-products and meat products at the same meal, or for serving meat that has not been slaughtered, salted and purged according to Jewish ritual. It is also possible in the home to maintain a distinction between pots and dishes designed for meat products and those designed for dairy products, although this should be regarded of minor importance.

"This does not mean, however, that kashrut should be completely disregarded when one is away from home. To do so makes its perpetuation in the home difficult for psychological reasons. People who acquire a taste for certain forbidden foods that are served them outside the home are almost certain to bring them eventually to their own tables, at first on special occasions and then habitually.

"The following distinctions, however, seem reasonable:

"1. No regulations with regard to pots and dishes need be applied outside the home.

"2. Foods consisting wholly

Schricker Lauds Jews At Lodge Affair Sunday

Paying high tribute to the Jewish people for their contributions to the upbuilding of the United States, Gov. Henry F. Schricker told the audience at the B'nai Brith 77th anniversary affair Sunday night at the Claypool Hotel that "Justice Brandeis, Governor Lehman, Justice Frankfurter, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Governor Horner and hundreds and hundreds of others have been as patriotic in this great land of ours as any other man."

Governor Schricker's speech was the climax of a brilliant affair. Lewis Sutin of Terre Haute, second vice president of District No. 2, declared that America is a symphony of cultures rather than a melting pot, and scored men like Judge Frank who recently wrote an article in The Saturday Evening Post criticizing Zionists and other Jewish groups.

The occasion opened with the initiation at 4:30 p.m., which was followed by the banquet. After the talks, a floor show was presented, and the evening closed with a dance.

Out-of-town lodges represented were Michigan City with Jack Gole, first vice president of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association, and A. A. Mayer; Evansville with Mr. and Mrs. Ferd

In The Service Now

So much interest has been shown in the doings of Indiana's Jewish boys in the service that The Post has decided to run a weekly column under the above heading. Parents and friends, not only in Indianapolis but throughout Indiana are invited to send in contributions, as are the boys in the service themselves. The Post is sent free to any member of the United States forces anywhere provided they write in for the paper themselves.

AL SEGAL Speaks On Even The Grass

I AM NOT sure whether the story I am about to tell is all true. It came out of Poland in a brief news report. One who has any belief at all in the essential divinity of the human-kind, finds it hard to believe atrocity stories even against Nazis.

True, there are many documented cruelties of their doing. (The thousands of their victims are our neighbors in our cities.) Yet when one reads about an old man being buried alive by Nazis, he says it can't be true even of Nazis. One likes to hold on to a fragment of his old faith for the sake of the time to come.

Yes, there is a better time to come and our souls must carry no corrosion into the new day. It is to be a time of the fulfillment of man marching to brotherhood and I must not believe that my brother, even the Germans, could do this.

He had many sins of his mind, his heart and his hand but he must have stopped at this ultimate degradation of his soul. I must hold fast to this bit of faith that is left; it gives a feeble spark of light in the darkness.

Yet what the old man is reported to have said at his burial surely is true. He said: "Even the grass has a longer life than Nebuchadnezzar." He said it again and again. That is as true as the verity of divine justice that in good time always has humbled the transgressor and ultimately has mingled the arrogant with the dust that blows in the wind.

The old man, the report said, was buried upright but his head was allowed to protrude above ground. His beard fluttered in the wind; his grave pressed on him like some vise pressing the breath of his life out of him.

If the story be true, one may guess that they didn't bury him whole for several reasons: To make sport of him and to torture his dying eyes with the sight of the world he was losing—the march of the sun from the dawn to the setting—the hill that looked golden at sunrise and the other on that was purple at dusk—the helpless compassion of his friends who stood about—the synagogue where from his childhood he had praised God for the good of his life and accounted its bitterness to his own sins.

Yet these things were all of his past; the old man looked rather at the time to come. The authority of the soldiers who stood about waiting for him to die would pass. Their guns would be rust. Their hate would be like the sullen fire that dies and leaves cold embers. Their master would be only a tale that is told, like all the other Nebuchadnezzars who had been.

But the grass would keep on growing every springtime, in accordance with the ordination. The last of it was withering in the autumn wind but it would grow again. In all the times to come the eastern hill be golden with the sunrise and the one at the west purple at the setting, and at evening the heavens would be full of the everlasting stars.

Hate perished of its own venom and cruel power in time was no more than its broken swords and the arrogant fell into their graves, and only the manifestations of God were everlasting. The goodness of God would replenish the earth that the children were going to inherit.

The old man looked up at the soldiers and said: "Even the grass has a longer life than Nebuchadnezzar." * * *

May my tongue be forgiven for repeating and elaborating on a tale that may not be true in the details of its cruelty and in its horrible reflection on the character of a man who was created in the image of God. I ask forgiveness for the sage of the everlasting truth that is in it: "Even the grass has a longer life than Nebuchadnezzar."

Well, we must believe that at long last there was a happy ending for the old man. It was toward evening when his grave pressed the last breath out of him and his soul winged toward the evening star.

"Evening star," his ghost said, "thou knowest it is true that even the grass has a longer life than Nebuchadnezzar."

The star twinkled like a winking eye and the old man understood. It was the twinkle of the wisdom of the star that had seen all the millenia, had seen all the Nebuchadnezzars and their ultimate dust, had seen the grass that had kept growing forever after them.

The old man was taken under the wing of the Shechinah, as was written, and in the flash of an eye it was fifty years afterward. (Who hasn't read that by the measure of eternity a thousand years are as a single day?) So we may span the fifty years in the brief space of a paragraph, and the year is 1991, and the evil of the year 1941 is but a memory of elderly men, and Nebuchadnezzar has been dead a long time but nobody knows where his grave is or whether he has a grave. He was left where he fell the time he was shot by his own soldiers in a secret place close by a cave in a mountain-side; and nobody has bothered to know what became of his corpse.

People said we have a good world to build and these are but the foul bones of an evil past, and why should we make over them? It was a happy departure from other times when the bones of Nebuchadnezzars were given sepulture in marble tombs for the veneration of posterity which forgot their shabby crimes and remembered the dazzling of their outward splendor.

The old man's ghost always remembered what he had said at his burial.

"O Lord God," he inquired, "doth the grass still grow? The grass was thick about the grave where they buried me. That day the grass was already withering in the cold wind. Yet I knew by Thy mercy it would live again and I said even the grass has a longer life than Nebuchadnezzar. I am the one who said it."

Now God considered that the man's faith should be rewarded by the evidence of fulfillment and he let him return to the earth for a brief sojourn to see that the grass grew.

He returned to the place of his grave. The grass still grew as thickly there as on that day and a rose bush grew there as well. In his last hours he had wept and the earth was watered by his tears, and a seed had fallen there and out of his tears this rosebush had grown. A child was breathing the fragrance of the flowers.

"O Lord God," he whispered, "the grass still doth grow and from my tears the rose bush has sprung to be the lovely inheritance of this child. Thou hast given this sign of a good world that may spring out of the tears of man."

XMAS SHOPPERS GO BY TROLLEY

Find Convenience of Transit System Superior to Driving Own Automobile

The trolleys and buses are the easy and convenient way to reach your trading center for Xmas shopping. No traffic jams, parking delays and expense face the housewife who boards the nearby transit line for her shopping trips.

Ride between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. For greatest convenience thousands of housewives are finding that trips made during off-peak hours, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., are most ideal because by so doing shoppers avoid the rush periods when workers are going to and from their employment.

Extra Shopping Service.

Until Christmas extra service has been added to most of the lines in the city because of the great increase in use of transit service by shoppers. These extra cars are really "shoppers' specials" and add greatly to the advantage of those who shop by trolley or bus.

Save for Christmas.

You'll probably make several shopping trips downtown. If you drive your car, it will cost you several dollars in parking fees. Save this money for other things by riding the low fare trolleys and buses. You'll save and you'll also be safe.

Leonard Dorman Marries Pennsylvania Girl

Mr. Louis Kovacs of North Braddock, Penn., announces the marriage of his daughter, Elsie, to Leonard Dorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dorman, 2124 English Ave. The ceremony was conducted at the Beth El Temple at 10 a. m., Friday, Nov. 28, with Rabbi Elias Charry and Cantor Myro Glass officiating.

Richard Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Weiss, will return Sunday for the winter vacation from Tulane University, New Orleans, La., where he is a freshman.

The Beth El Sisterhood knitting group will hold a meeting at 1 p. m., Monday, Dec. 22 at Beth El Temple. A total of 93 women attended the last meeting and yarn for over 100 sweaters was given out. More material is available and may be procured at the meeting Monday by calling Mrs. Oscar Kuschner, 3015 N. Penn. St. at TA 3973 or Mrs. A. Bartick, 134 W. 43rd St., HU 4091.

Three new members were welcomed into the P.S.T. club last Thursday night, at the home of Zelma Hochman. They were Beverly Simon, Rose Bernath and Helga Breisacher. Members of the club are knitting for the Red Cross as their project and plans are being made for the anniversary dance in February.

The Delta Rho sorority held a Chanukah party last Thursday night at the home of Pauline Cohen. Gifts were exchanged. The next meeting will be held at the home of Zelma Finegold.

Members of Kirshbaum Center's ballroom dancing class for boys and girls, have been invited to attend a party at 7:30 p. m. Monday, Dec. 22. The celebration, which will round up the dancing class, is open to each who enrolled, a special guest, and their parents.

The K.A.T. club met at the home of Harriett Jacobs Saturday afternoon, when plans were made for the first annual dinner dance to be held Friday, Dec. 19 in the Sapphire room at the Washington Hotel. Only members of the club and their escorts will attend.

State Teaching of Religion Is Okehed By Group

Following a six-month study of religious education in Indiana, a committee appointed by Dr. Clement T. Malan, Indiana Superintendent of Public Instruction, this week recommended the introduction of biblical history and literature study courses in the public schools of Indiana.

Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, was the Jewish member of the committee, which was composed of a Protestant, a Catholic and other religious leaders.

It was believed that the program would be ready of introduction in the public schools for the beginning of the 1942 school term.

In its report, these findings were emphasized.

1. If the program were carried through, certain core material in the Bible, acceptable to all denominations, would be compiled in a textbook.
2. No school pupil would be required to take the instruction. The course would not be compulsory.
3. No community school system would be forced to make the course a part of its regular curriculum.
4. Parents would consent to the instruction before the children would be enrolled in the religious course.

The editor's chair:

Emanuel Feuerman, considered the world's most accomplished cellist, performed with the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra last week-end, and as far as I know, from a community standpoint, his appearance here went unnoticed. Mr. Feuermann it was, who founded the Palestine Symphony Orchestra, almost single-handedly. He was able to persuade Toscanini to come to Palestine to conduct the finished group of musicians, most of whom were exiles from Europe, and although a musical organization like the Palestine Symphony might eventually have made its appearance, it is almost certain that had it not been for the perseverance of Mr. Feuermann, the group would never have been catapulted almost over night into the front rank of symphony orchestras, the way it was.

Quite often friends of the paper will call to tell us about engagements or marriages. Also in the regular course of my goings about, I am told here and there about forthcoming weddings, or betrothals. Also from time to time people say why didn't you print so and so's engagement announcement or wedding, it was in Sunday's paper. The answer is too clear to warrant discussion. These announcements never get into the daily papers unless they are transmitted by the people concerned or their parents. If these people wanted their announcements in The Post, all they would have had to do was to send us one of the copies that they sent to the daily newspapers. It is unethical for a newspaper to print either an engagement or a wedding unless that announcement is communicated to the paper by the proper party. Some papers even go so far as to demand signed announcements in order to avoid unpleasant situations which may arise when someone seeks to hurt another person.

Sam Kroot did an especially good job in conducting the recently concluded membership drive of B'nai Brith. The total figure stands now at 106, but when last Friday afternoon the drive was just about over, Sam called me and reported that only 94 members were in, just six short of the 100 goal. I told Sam I would see what could be done, and got on the phone and scraped up two new members, Joe Burnstein and Dr. Cecil Cohen. I had to leave the office, so I called Sam to tell him that I wouldn't be able to work any more, and

An Indestructible Cornerstone

ONE OF the finest tributes to any Jewish community in Indiana was paid this week to the Jews of Kokomo when a letter over the signature Karl F. Johnson, a Catholic, and Glen R. Hillis, a Protestant, went out to a group of Kokomo non-Jews urging support of the drive for funds to construct a Jewish Temple in that city. The letter read

"No doubt you and others of your organization have become familiar with the often expressed desire of the Jewish people in our city for a place where they and their children may gather for worship.

"Having in mind the fact that no community enterprise in Kokomo has ever failed to receive the gracious wholehearted support of the Jewish people, we feel that it is now fitting and proper that the community give its support to their worthy object.

"We know that you will place as high a value on the merits of their cause as we do and that you will be generous with your support of this matter as you have always been in worth-while community undertakings.

"A member of their committee will call upon you in a few days to discuss this subject further with you."

Reporting on this splendid letter, the local daily paper wrote:

"That the information set forth in the letter by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Hillis is correct, all who know something of Kokomo's religious history will readily agree.

"It is true that local Jews have been ready and generous contributors to all movements for community betterment, whether commercial, industrial or cultural. Citizens who are fair readily concede the correctness of that statement.

"Among Kokomo's mellowed memories are some of Jewish men and women who long resided here, who met the best standards of citizenship, who lived dutifully and who died with dignity, and who left behind them something every tolerant heart has been glad to cherish."

With $10,000 already raised, which is over half of the funds needed, and with the aid of gifts from non-Jewish friends, it is a certainty that Kokomo's Jewish community, which dates back to 1845, will have its own house of worship. This form of testimonial from Kokomo's non-Jewish citizens makes as solid and bright a cornerstone for the new structure as that of any building erected anywhere to the betterment of mankind.

Brought It On Ourselves

IF THE recommendations of the committee on religious education are put into operation in the state public school system, as it is almost certain they will, and if the guiding rule of the separation of Church and State is thereby jeopardized, the citizens of Indiana have only themselves to blame.

In a perfect democratic society as envisioned by Thomas Jefferson, religious instruction would have been provided in the home by the parents and by the churches.

That this arrangement has not, at least in the past two or three decades, worked out is obvious.

Consequently if our growing children are to know and accept the ethical principles of religion, there is only one way, and that would be through some method of public instruction away from the home and away from the church.

The recommendations may meet with disapproval from Jewish sources, but it should be borne in mind that where in the past it never could be said that Jewish children grew up in ignorance of their religion, now they are just as guilty as any other religious denomination.

THE BILL OF RIGHTS

As set forth in the First Ten Amendments to the Constitution. Proposed to the States by Congress on September 25, 1789, and ratified on December 15, 1791.

ARTICLE I

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II

A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury to the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusations; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

ARTICLE VII

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Freedom of the Press PALS CLUB TO REORGANIZE

To the editor,

The pals Club, a group of young men who originally met at the Side of Indianapolis some fifteen Communal building on the South years ago and for many years after its inception earned the respect and admiration of the Jewish community, is once again functioning in the same spirit and purposes as originally planned.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 9 at the Fairbanks Room of the Columbia Club, a small organizing group met to discuss the plan and future of this organization. It was decided that the organization should remain to a large extent a social group, and secondly that it shall endeavor wherever possible to cooperate with all other Jewish organizations and functions that are worthy of their backing, and that it shall from time to time invite noted lecturers and other outstanding personalities who would be interest to the club. It was decided that for the present the Columbia Club shall be its meeting place and that the next meeting shall be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 6.

The organizing committee consists of Sidney Stein, Sam Blum, Jack Fogle, Dr. Leon Goldberg, Roger Popp, and Nathan Resnick. The organizing committee has endeavored to contact all former members of the Pals Club. However some members have undoubtedly been overlooked. We are therefore taking the means to invite all former Pals Club members to attend this meeting on January 6, at which time the election of officers will take place and the full program for the year will be formulated. The club is therefore very anxious that all former Pals be present. For further information call Nathan Resnick, Garfield 6550, after 6 p.m.

that he'd just have to turn in a report of 96, but Sam had already rounded up two from some of his other workers, and the number stood then at 98. That was fine, and when later I got back to the office, I thought I'd try to see if I couldn't get those other two. I did get Jack Maurer to join, and I called Sam again to tell him the score was 99, but lo and behold the score was by then already 102. If you've ever tried to run a membership campaign, you'll agree with me that Sam did some noble work.

Saul Koby, Commander of the local Post of the Jewish War Vets, stopped me at the B'nai Brith affair Sunday night and wanted to know why The Post hadn't printed anything about the Bill of Rights. I thought sure we had, and so told him, but on checking the paper, I found that Mr. Koby was right. So this week I'm printing the Bill of Rights in full in the "Current Comment" section on this page. They make very good reading. I'm sure you know, already, that Monday, the first day of Chanukah, was also the 150th anniversary of the adoption of these first ten amendments to the Constitution.
